Rhetorical and Stylistic Devices

What is a Rhetorical Device?

A rhetorical device is a technique of using language that will increase the persuasiveness of a piece of writing. A writer or speaker will use these to a meaning with the goal of persuading the listener or reader towards considering a topic from a different perspective. A rhetorical device is to make the audience receptive through emotional changes and to provide a rational argument for the frame of view or course of action.

The Effectiveness of Rhetorical Devices

Rhetorical devices generally fall into three different categories:

- Those involving emphasis, association, clarification, and focus
- Those involving physical organization, transition, and disposition or arrangement
- Those involving decoration and variety

While some ideas have been given about the effect of these devices, you are not limited to what is written here. Also, there is often more than one effect created by a given device, which often devices on the situation in question.

Alliteration
The repetition in successive words of the same initial consonant sound or of any vowel sound
- creates a strong, emotional response
- the effect of successful alliteration is beauty of sound and emphasis

Example: The majestic, the magnificent Mississippi.

Allusion
A reference to a generally familiar person, place or thing, whether real or legendary
- drawn from history, geography, the Bible, mythology, and literature
- creates familiarity for audience; audience connects to something larger than present

Example: To eat or not to eat.

Analogy
A comparison of two things, often a dissimilar nature yet alike in certain aspects, in order to suggest that what is true of one applies to the other

Example: Writing a book of poetry is like dropping a rose petal down the Grand Canyon and waiting for the echo.

Anaphora
The repetition of a word, or group of words, at the beginning of successive clauses, sentences or lines of poetry
- emphasis is created, although care must be taken not to become affected or to sound rhetorical and bombastic

Example: To think on death it is a misery,/ To think on life it is a vanity;/ To think on the world verily it is,/ To think that here man hath no perfect bliss.

Anecdote
A short, interesting or amusing story about a particular person or event told to make a point. Forms a more human connection (pathos) between audience and speaker.

Antimetabole
Repetition of words in reverse order

Example: Ask not what your country can do for you, but ask what you can do for your country.

Example: Fail to plan, to fail.
Antithesis  Establishes a clear, contrasting relationship between two ideas by joining them together or juxtaposing them, often in parallel structure.
-Used more emphasis and to draw attention

Example: We shall support any friend, oppose any foe.
Example: To err is human; to forgive, divine.
Example: That’s one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind.

Assonance  The repetition of internal vowel sounds in closely following words.
- The effect of successful assonance is beauty of sound and emphasis

Example: A deep, green stream

Asyndeton  Omission of conjunctions between coordinate phrases, clauses, or words. It creates an emotional feeling of “building up” and that there is more to follow.

Example: He came, he saw, he conquered.
Example: They spent the day wondering, searching, thinking, understanding.

Closing by return  The practise of ending a long paragraph or one section of an essay by returning to an image, an idea, or a statement that occurs in the beginning

Colloquialism  Language which occurs more often in speech than in writing
- Strengthens argument by using relatable language

Example: After having committed a succession of grisly murders, he was thrown into the slammer for life.

Connotation  Not the thing or idea the word stands for (denotation), but the attitudes, feelings and emotions aroused by the word

Example: Village/hick town

Euphemism  Replacing a harsh word with a more pleasant one
- Disguises truth, often used by politicians and in censorship endeavours
- Used to downplay a potentially bleak situation

Example: Kick the bucket.
Example: He was vertically challenged.

Figurative Language  Describes language that moves, for meaning or effect, beyond standard or literal meaning
- Common figures of speech include simile, metaphor, personification, pun, hyperbole, understatement, oxymoron

Flow  The continuity, or coherence, among the sentences of a paragraph

Framing Words  Serve to separate and to introduce the several divisions of a subject or thought

Examples: first, moreover, therefore, etc.

Hortative Sentence  Sentence that exhorts, advises, calls to action

Example: Your talents are wasted. You should look for a more rewarding job!

Hyperbole  Deliberate exaggeration

Example: till all the seas run dry.

Imagery  A picture made with words although images may also appeal to touch, hearing, and taste
- In a much broader sense, imagery refers to an author’s use of figures of speech of any kind

Imperative Sentence  Sentence used to command, enjoin, implore, or entreat

Example: My fellow citizens of the world: ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man.

Simile

Is a comparison between two different things that resemble each other in at least one way. In formal prose the simile is a device both of art and explanation, comparing an unfamiliar thing to some familiar thing (an object, event, process, etc.) known to the reader. It generally uses “like” or “as”.

Example: My mistress' eyes are nothing like the sun

Symbol

A person, place or thing that exists both in its own right as something real and tangible and also as something greater than itself - an attitude, a belief, a quality, a value.

Synecdoche

A form of metaphor which in mention a part signifies the whole, or the whole symbolizes the part (often not distinguished from metonymy)

Example: General Motors announced cutbacks.

Example: Farmer Jones has two hundred head of cattle and three hired hands.

Example: Give us this day our daily bread.

Understatement

To play down or soften something that is starting, horrifying, shocking, painful, or otherwise deserving of more emotion and attention than the writer gives it.

Tone

The speaker's attitude toward the subject or audience.

- In some essays, the tone may be so personal that readers come to feel they know the author intimately.

Zeugma

Includes several similar rhetorical devices, all involving a grammatically correct linkage (or yoking together) of two or more parts of speech by another part of speech. The main benefit of the linking is that it shows relationships between ideas and actions more clearly.

Example: Fred excelled at sports; Harvey at eating; Tom with girls.

Example: Alexander conquered the world; I, Minneapolis.
